

Top 10 Signs You Might Be a Server Hugger

By DataCenter.BZ
September 21, 2009

10. You say "goodnight" to your server as you leave the building at night
9. You walk past your data center window several times a day just to see the flashing lights
8. You miss the cool breeze of the data center when you aren't there
7. They know you by name at Batteries Plus because you are constantly trying to keep up with your failed UPS batteries
6. You wear a sweater every day in July so you can hang out at the data center
5. You can't sleep at night when a storm blows through
4. You have on your person a small phillips / flathead screwdriver to break into any routing or serving device at your pleasure
3. The server is named after you
2. You think virtualization is only in your head
1. You walk around with an impression of a power supply fan guard on your cheek